ADEH

Journal of Historical Demography
Journal of Ibero-American Population Studies

GUIDELINES FOR AUTHORS

Submission and requirements for manuscripts

Manuscripts should be submitted electronically by email to the Editor at the following addresses: revista@ adeh.org or revistaadeh@ outlook.es.

The maximum length of the text shall be 32 DIN-A4 pages (approx. 10,000–12,000 words), double-spaced, in 12-point Times New Roman font, including graphs, tables, maps, notes (these in the same font, 10-point and double-spaced), appendix(es) and bibliography (the bibliography to be single-spaced). Margins must be 3 cm on all sides; the text must be justified and each page numbered consecutively in the top right-hand corner. All figures, tables and maps must be numbered and accompanied by a title and a reference to the source. Please submit all tables, figures, maps or photographs as separate files in black and white (jpg or pdf format, minimum resolution 300 pixels per inch).

Footnotes must be placed at the bottom of the page and numbered consecutively using Arabic numerals. The first footnote (*) may state that the paper is related to a research project, that it is based on a conference presentation, or that it is an expanded or translated version of another paper, or similar circumstances. Furthermore, in the case of a funded research project, details must be provided regarding any scholarships, grants or financial support received.

The manuscript must be anonymised, and a separate document must be submitted containing a title page which includes: the title of the article; the first name and two surnames of each author; the institution of each author; ORCID; the name and email address of the corresponding author; an abstract of the work (maximum 150 words); and keywords (between 5 and 10).

The title, abstract and keywords must be in Spanish, Portuguese, English or French. The authors are responsible for providing translations into the languages listed.

Citations and bibliographical references

In-text citations must be included within the text. For example: ... (Pérez Moreda, 1980: 336–346), and if the name of the author(s) cited is already mentioned in the text, it must be followed by the publication date and page numbers in brackets: ... Pérez Moreda (1980: 336–346).

The bibliography must be listed at the end of the manuscript, arranged in alphabetical order by author, in accordance with the following formats:

LIVI-BACCI, Massimo (1968): "Fertility and nuptiality changes in Spain from the late 18th to the early 20th century (I)", Population Studies, XXII, 1, pp. 83–102.

GÓMEZ REDONDO, Rosa (1992): Spanish infant mortality in the 20th century, Madrid, CIS/Siglo XXI .

NADAL, Jordi; CARRERAS, Albert and SUDRIA, Carles (eds.) (1987): The Spanish economy in the 20th century. A historical perspective, Barcelona, Ariel.

WRIGLEY, Edward Anthony (1978): "Fertility strategy for the individual and the group", in TILLY, Charles (ed.), Historical studies of changing fertility, Princeton, Princeton University Press, pp. 135–154.

[Access the template via the following link: [Template]]

Family and demographic change: an example of article structure*

Family and demographic change: an example article structure

Abstract

Abstract. This sample text presents a basic structure for a research article in historical demography. It demonstrates how to organise the introduction, sources, analysis and conclusions, as well as how to incorporate bibliographical references, notes and tables.

Keywords: family; population; historical demography; methodology; social history.

Abstract. This demonstration text presents a basic structure for a historical demography research article. It shows how to organise the introduction, sources, analysis and conclusions, and how to include references, footnotes and tables.

Keywords: family; population; historical demography; methodology; social history.

1. Introduction

Historical demographic research combines quantitative analysis with social and historical contextualisation. The literature on population and demographic change offers a variety of interpretative frameworks (Livi-Bacci, 1968: 83–102).

2. Sources and methodology

This section describes the parish, census, notarial and administrative sources

, as well as their limitations and potential. The selection of indicators must be tailored to the research questions.

3. Analysis

The results must be presented in a structured manner and accompanied by verifiable references. A narrative citation may be introduced as follows: Gómez Redondo (1992) is an example of a monographic reference.

3.1. An example of a footnote

This paragraph includes a footnote.[1]

4. Conclusions

The conclusions should address the initial objectives, summarise the findings and highlight their limitations. They should not merely repeat the content of the preceding sections.

Bibliographical references

Gómez Redondo, Rosa (1992). Infant mortality in Spain in the 20th century. Madrid: CIS/Siglo XXI.

Livi-Bacci, Massimo (1968). 'Fertility and nuptiality changes in Spain from the late 18th to the early 20th century (I)'. In: Population Studies 22.1, pp. 83–102.

[1] Footnotes should be used for clarifications or supplementary information, and should not be turned into a second, parallel text.

ADEH
Journal of Historical Demography
Journal of Ibero-American Population Studies

Information for authors:

Authors are advised to include detailed additional information in a separate document or on the first page of the text. This should be presented in the following order and contain the following details:

Acknowledgements

➢ Contribution of each author in the case of articles with more than one author:
- E.g.: Conceptualisation, data processing and analysis, methodology, drafting of the first version, drafting of the final version, supervision, editing or other.

➢ ORCID code for each author

➢ Authors' conflicts of interest:
- E.g.: The authors declare that they have no conflict of interest with regard to this article

➢ Availability of the data used:
- E.g.: The data contained in this paper may be requested from the authors

Access the template via the following link: [Template]

JOURNAL OF HISTORICAL DEMOGRAPHY

Journal of Ibero-American Population Studies

Title of the article in Spanish/English/Portuguese or French

Title of the article in English/Spanish

Authorship

First name and surname of author 1
Affiliation / department / institution
ORCID: 0000-0000-0000-0000

First name and surname of author 2
Affiliation / department / institution
ORCID: 0000-0000-0000-0000

Corresponding author: First name and surname
Email: correo@institucion.es
Institutional postal address: Full address (if applicable)

Conceptualisation, data processing and analysis, methodology, drafting of the first version, drafting of the final version, supervision, editing or other.

> Acknowledgements and funding sources.

➢Authors' conflicts of interest: The authors declare that they have no conflicts of interest regarding this article.

Abstract

Write an abstract of no more than 10 words here.

It should concisely present the aim, sources or methodology, and the main findings of the study.

Keywords: historical demography, population, social history, family, methodology.

Abstract

Write the English version of the abstract here (maximum 1 0 words).

Keywords: historical demography; population; social history; family; methodology.

Cover sheet. Please submit this separately from the anonymised manuscript.

Editorial process

The Journal's Editorial Board will acknowledge receipt of submissions sent to the corresponding author and will subsequently provide information on all aspects of the peer-review process, as well as whether the manuscript has been accepted or rejected for final publication.

Open Access Publication Policy

The Revista de Demografía Histórica – Journal of Iberoamerican Population Studies publishes its content as open access under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 4.0 International (CC BY-NC-SA 4.0) licence.

Authors retain ownership of the intellectual property rights and authorship of their works. This licence allows third parties to copy and redistribute the articles in any medium or format, provided that the authorship and original publication are properly acknowledged, the content is not used for commercial purposes, and no derivative works or modified versions are distributed.

The journal permits the immediate deposit, without an embargo period (0 months), of the final published version of the article (editorial PDF) in institutional or subject-specific repositories, as well as on personal websites and other academic platforms, provided that the licence conditions are upheld and the bibliographic reference to the original publication and the corresponding DOI are included.

By accepting publication, authors authorise the journal to carry out the necessary operations for the editing, reproduction, distribution, public communication and dissemination of their articles in any format or medium, including institutional repositories, bibliographic databases and scientific indexing systems, whilst at all times respecting the ownership of copyright and the terms of the specified licence.

Bibliographic reviews

The Revista de Demografía Histórica-Journal of Iberoamerican Population Studies publishes bibliographic reviews resulting from contributions requested by the Editorial Board or the Board of the ADEH Association. Preference will be given to reviews of works published within the last three years. The text must adhere to the same style guidelines, including font, size, margins, etc., as the journal's articles. Reviews should be between 1,000 and 2,500 words in length.

Further Information

For further information and details regarding the guidelines and instructions for authors, the characteristics and structure of submissions, the editorial process, ethical responsibilities, etc., please consult the full document on guidelines and instructions for authors on the website of the Association of Historical Demography (ADEH): https://adeh.org/revista-de-demografia-historica/.